

Privacy Statement Data Privacy Stichting

In this privacy statement the Data Privacy Stichting (DPS) explains how we treat your personal data.

What does DPS do?

DPS is an organization that represents the interests of people who are victims of an infringement of their privacy. The Data Privacy Stichting was founded with the statutory tasks of protecting those interests against any unlawful infringement of privacy and obtaining redress for such violations.

For that purpose does DPS process personal data?

DPS processes personal data only if that is strictly necessary for executing our statutory tasks. For example DPS processes personal data for legal proceedings concerning data breaches. DPS also uses personal data to inform you about our legal proceedings.

What kind of personal data does DPS process?

The data that DPS collects and uses is processed by us, typically, because you will have contacted DPS and, in doing so, will have released information about yourself. This would occur, for example, if you have signed on with us as an aggrieved party.

Cookies

If you want to know more about the cookies DPS uses and why DPS uses them, please read our Cookie Statement.

On what legal basis is DPS allowed to process your personal data?

DPS is only allowed to use your personal data for reasons that are listed in the relevant privacy legislation.

DPS processes your personal data to execute the agreement between you and DPS. DPS also processes data for our legitimate interest to execute our statutory tasks (article 6, para. 1, sub f, GDPR).

If you consent to the processing of your personal data, for example when you subscribe to our newsletter, that consent is used as a processing ground for the relevant purpose (article 6, para. 1, sub a, GDPR).

Does DPS share your personal data with third parties?

DPS may share your data with the parties representing and otherwise assisting DPS in connection with fulfilling DPS's statutory task. DPS does not share your data with any third party that is not operating under an obligation of confidentiality.

Data retention

DPS never keeps your personal data longer than strictly necessary. It is possible that DPS has to keep your data for a longer period of time based on legal obligations prescribed by national law.

Security measures

DPS has implemented the necessary technical and organizational measures to protect the personal data DPS processes, for example to ensure your data won't get lost. The safeguarding of your personal data takes place in compliance with relevant regulations and guidelines.

An example of an organizational measure is that within DPS, only competent DPS staff has access to your personal data. This staff only has access insofar as necessary to fulfil their duties.

What rights do you have considering your personal data?

DPS processes your personal data for the above described purposes. Considering the data that DPS processes you have several rights you can exercise by sending us a request. In the following we have listed the types request you can file with us:

- Right of access: If you file a request for the right of access you will receive an specified overview of the personal data that DPS processes.
- Right to rectification: If you file a request to rectify inaccurate personal data, DPS will correct that data If needed, including by means of providing a supplementary statement.
- Right of erasure: In similar cases you can request that DPS erases your personal data.
- Right to restriction of processing: In some cases you can also file a request with DPS to have the processing of your personal data restricted.
- Right to object: Depending on your particular situation you can object to the processing of your personal data by DPS.
